Philosophical Methods Seminar

Office: HSS 7017
Office Hours: Th. 2:00-4:00 pm

1. Overview

This course is designed for majors to hone their skills in understanding, constructing, evaluating, presenting, and discussing philosophical arguments and writing about them in a clear and careful way. The small seminar setting will provide an ideal opportunity to practice in all of the above. The format of each class will be discussion of the views and arguments expressed in the readings assigned for that day, with everyone contributing to constructive class discussions.

Our means of honing our philosophical skills will be through a close examination of G.A. Cohen’s 2008 book, Rescuing Justice in Equality, in which Cohen takes up central issues in political philosophy, particularly as they concern distributive justice. Much of Cohen’s discussion takes the form of a critique of John Rawls, arguably the most influential political philosophy of the 20th century. To prepare ourselves for understanding Cohen we will therefore begin by reading one of Rawls’s later works, Justice as Fairness: A Restatement (2001).

2. Assessment

1. Weekly short two-three page papers responding to the readings, from week two to week eight. Your grade will be based on the top five grades, so you can turn in all seven and use the top five, or just turn in five (25%).

2. One term paper (about 10-15 pages), preceded by a prospectus that includes the main ideas and a bibliography (1-2 pages). I will provide feedback on the prospectus before you get started on the paper (10% + 35% = 45%).

Prospectus due: Tues. March 1, start of class.
Term-paper due: Thurs. March 17, 5:00 pm. (Exam week).

(3) Attendance and participation (15%). If you have a valid excuse and cannot make it to class, you need to let me know as soon as you can.
(4) Two oral presentations (5% + 10% = 15%).
